State Encourages Unemployment Benefit Claimants to File Claims Online

LAS VEGAS, NV – Nevada’s Department of Employment, Training and Rehabilitation (DETR) is encouraging claimants to use the internet to file their unemployment insurance (UI) claims. The state’s Unemployment Insurance Claim Filing System (UInV) provides information for both claimants and employers. Claimants can visit <http://ui.nv.gov/css.html> while employers can utilize <http://ui.nv.gov/ess.html>. In addition to providing a mechanism for online claim filing, the website contains other information, such as Frequently Asked Questions, contact information, forms, guides, information on related legislation and other helpful data.

If you have technical problems with your online UI claim filing, you can email INTERNETHELP@detr.nv.gov and remember to include your full name and only the last four digits of your social security number when reporting your reporting specific UI claim problem. You can also call (775) 684-0427 (8:00 am to 5:00 pm Pacific Time). For general questions about your claim, use phone numbers above under the “Contact Us” link on the UI Claimants and Employer pages.

“DETR has been closely monitoring and preparing as the COVID-19 situation in Nevada develops,” said DETR Director, Dr. Tiffany Tyler-Garner said. “With a potential increase in claims in the near future, we are actively evaluating and preparing to ensure our system and staffing levels can meet an increased demand.”
